This Week in Wabash

Hello, Wabash,

Happy Monday. Happy February. I hope you're having a successful time digging out from last week's storms. It was certainly the largest storm we've experienced this winter, and by my estimation, the most intense of the past few years, too. Even though it's still bitterly cold outside my window, I can see the sun shining so that makes things feel at least a little bit warmer than they would otherwise.

Speaking of the winter storms, I wanted to call your attention to our Facebook page once again. If you haven't "liked" us on there, please do so now. It's a great way to stay in touch with us and other readers.

First of all, I have to thank the over 100 readers who submitted their own snow pictures after I asked those who follow us on Facebook to submit. There were some really amazing contributions. I included as many in Saturday's newspaper as I possibly could, but there were dozens and dozens of others which couldn't fit. (I tried to prioritize clear photos of people and animals to put into the print edition.) Please take the time to scroll through those on our Facebook page. We even had a reader from Houston, Texas let us know how much they appreciated seeing how the storm was looking back in Wabash County, Indiana.

Also on our Facebook page, we had announcements about the possible delay to the delivery of our Wednesday newspaper due to the weather. Subscribers were still able to access our e-edition, but again, our Facebook page proved to be a great resource to get the word out about this change.

Finally, due to the extreme weather conditions we removed the paywall for our website from Wednesday until today to allow non-subscribers to access our content. Again, if you weren't paying attention to our Facebook page you'd never know this.

Well, that's all I have for you this week. Try to stay warm if you possibly can.

Best,
Rob
